A CONFIDENCE MAN.

Several Comstockers Victimized for Small Amounts.

The Virginia Chronicle of the 22d inst. says: Yesterday a tall, stout-built, well-dressed man about 25 years of age, called upon a member of a well-known local mercantile firm and introduced himself by the same name as the person he addressed, and incidentally remarked that the similarity of names indicated a relationship, and said there was a marked family resemblance. The conversation ended with the prepossessing stranger requesting an advance of $5 to pay for a telegram to his brother in Sacramento to forward him some money, as he (the stranger) had lost his bank account book enroute. The stranger offered a galvanized watch as security for the loan. The merchant confidingly passed over $5 to his new acquaintance, but refused to accept the watch as collateral, remarking that the stranger's face was sufficient security for the money.

The stranger departed, promising to call a few hours later and repay the loan. His next victim was a mine superintendent, to whom the stranger introduced himself as of the same family name, and stated that he was from England, where he knew several of the superintendent's ancestry. From the latter gentleman the stranger negotiated a loan of $20 until he could communicate with relatives to replace his lost bank account book with a remittance or letter of credit.

As the day wore on and the stranger failed to materialize with the borrowed coin his victims, who included probably a score besides the merchant and superintendent, began to scent a mouse of elephantine proportions and communicated their misgivings to Chief Tally who immediately began a search for the confidence man. He was traced to a faro room, which he had left an hour before Chief Tally visited it, and it was found he had left an overcoat in the U. S. saloon, but as he neglected to call for it, it is surmised that he discovered the police were on his trail and shook the dust of the Comstock from his shoes.

It was ascertained that the stranger had visited O'Toole's saloon in the course of the day and getting "stuck" in a game of cards for four drinks, placed a $5 piece on the saloon bar and left remarking that he would return in a moment for the change, but as he failed to do so it is supposed that scenting the officers on his trail he became alarmed and left town.

BADLY FRIGHTENED.

A Reno Business Man Charges on a Supposed Burglar.

Yesterday a Renoite, whose family is temporarily absent, had occasion to visit an upper room of his dwelling where he had not been since the departure of his family, and was startled by the discovery that all the silverware of the family was compactly piled on a small table, and his nerves were further shaken up by the discovery of a man lying on a bed, neatly covered by a sheet. The bewildered and now thoroughly frightened temporary widower, lost no time in getting out of the house, and hastily securing the assistance of two stalwart friends, all three of whom were well armed, they cautiously returned to the chamber, where a closer inspection revealed the fact that the ladies of the family, before leaving home, had carefully piled a large quantity of clean clothing on the bed, neatly covering it with a sheet. The outlines of a human form were unwittingly formed by placing the clothing in a shape to be closely covered from dust.

Card of Thanks.

It is with deep and lasting gratitude that we acknowledge the sympathy and valuable services of our many kind friends in the sad bereavement through which we have just passed. Especially do we appreciate the thoughtfulness and vigilance of the Good Templars, both as a lodge and individual members, and the beautiful floral offerings from them and the church choir. May these many expressions of sympathy and interest prove to be "bread cast upon the waters," that shall "return after many days."

The Color Line.

By Associated Press.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—In the Episcopal Convention this morning, in the House of Deputies, the colored question was re-opened by the Committee of Conference appointed by the House of Deputies, who recommended that the Deputies accede to the desires of the Upper House, and to pass the resolution defining the attitude of the Episcopate toward the negro race. The Deputies declined to reconsider their action.

A resolution to substitute for the words, "Protestant Episcopal," the words "American Church," amounting to a change in the title of church, was referred to the next convention. The resolution from the Joint Commttee on Liturgical Revision, implying the omission of the prayer for the President, was rejected. The question of marriage and divorce will be discussed with closed doors this afternoon.

A Practical Monopoly.

By Associated Press.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 23.—In response to the strongly worded memorials from the British Columbia vesselmen, the Commissioner of Customs has ordered that all freight in bond from Canadian points through the United States to British Columbia ports must be carried from the Pacific port of transhipment to its destination in British vessels, or in vessels of foreign countries, who possess coasting privileges in Canadian waters. A Canadian law forbidding coasting privileges to American vessels has heretofore been honored in its breach, and the order is in the shape of a bombshell to British Columbia importers, as it practically gives a monopoly to the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company.

Croup Can be Prevented.

We want every mother to know that croup can be prevented. There is no question about this; as it has been done in thousands of cases, and you may depend upon it that when a child takes the croup, it is wholely to the negligence of its parents. True croup never appears without due and timely warning; a few hours, or a day before the attack, the child becomes hoarse. This hoarseness is the first indication of croup, and is a sure sign that croup is to follow, unless promptly and properly treated. The free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as directed with each bottle, under the heading "To prevent croup" will dispel all symptoms of the disease. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

Among the incidents of childhood, that stand out in bold relief, as our memory reverts to the days when we were young, none are more prominent than those of sickness. The young mother vividly remembers, that it was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured her of the croup, and in turn administers it to her own offspring and always with the best success. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

There is but little, if any danger from whooping cough, when the cough is kept loose and expectoration easy, which can always be done by the free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no injurious substance. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 23.—The residents of Allen settlement, Hastings county, have been thrown into wild excitement over the discovery that for upwards of a year John T. Blondin, aged 22 years, who has been teaching one of the schools, has seduced a number of his pupils. Saturday night Mrs. George Rollins, the wife of one of the most respected residents of the settlement, found her little daughtor Lillie, aged 14, crying bitterly. The girl acknowledged that she was in a delicate condition and that Blondin was responsible.

Blondin was arrested on Monday. The residents of the village formed a vigilance committee, headed by the father of the victim, and started in a body for the house in which Blondin boarded, only to find that he had been safely lodged in jail.

By this time it had become generally known that he had ruined ten or twelve other children from 12 to 15 years old. He has been in the habit of delaying young girl pupils after school, when he would treat them to candy, and after getting them under his influence, accomplish their ruin.

He would keep them in alternately, enjoining each to secrecy under a threat of shooting them if they ever breathed a word to their parents or the scholars. Blondin always bore an excellent reputation. He is greatly broken down over the discovery and offered to marry Lilly Rollins. It is reported that another attempt will be made to lynch him.

The Silver Question.

The silver question is one of great moment to this State as well as some of the new States that will soon be numbered in the galexy, and should meet with urgent action from our representatives in Congress. This winter is the time to strike a blow for silver that will be felt, and if Senator Jones pulls off his coat and goes to work with what knowledge he has of this subject, coupled with his great ability and influence, backed by Senator Stewart's indomitable energy and pluck, we believe they can make a winning fight. For certainly no State in the Union is more ably represented than Nevada, and no two Senators have more influence than Senators Stewart and Jones. The Silver Congress, shortly to meet in St. Louis, will do good work, and that backed by our own representative in Congress with the help that they will receive from the new States should bring silver to par within a year. From present indications the tariff question is going to be the battle ground upon which our party leaders are to wage war, and if Senators Jones and Stewart and Congressman Bartine would say to their Eastern colleagues that no legislation should take place touching the tariff question until silver was restored to its proper value and show by this act that they meant what they said, we believe the question would be speedily settled. No man in the Senate is more attentively listened to when he speaks than Senator Jones, and no one occupying a seat on the floor has greater weight or influence, and we believe if Jones and Stewart strike a blow this winter, that they will knock the gold bugs out of the ring and place silver where it justly belongs in the list of values.

PRESIDENT ELIOT of Harvard College has led the little band of Mugwumps into the Democratic camp. Since he said there was no use in keeping up the Mugwump delusion longer the movement of Mugwumps has become general. One cannot indorse the Republican position on the tariff and another cannot forgive Harrison for having put Republicans in the places Democrats had occupied. No one, says the Call, will question the right of President Eliot and other Mugwumps to go over to the Democrats. It is possible, however, in view of the noise they make in going over that they will be disappointed in the number of their following.

GOVERNOR HILL, in his speech at the dedication of the Pulitzer building in New York, on Thursday, related a story of Samuel J. Tilden. "The Sage of Greystone," said he, "appreciating the influence of the public press, once, many years ago, whispered into the ear of a young ambitious lawyer just upon entering an active political life this suggestive and admirable advice: 'Young man, get the newspapers to talk about you. Get them to talk in your favor if you can—if not, get them to talk against you. Do not be ignored.

THE Chinese Consul-General is reported to have disgorged a large portion of the money claimed to have been withheld by him from the Chinese claimants. If this be true, what becomes of the indignant denials which he put in when the story was first made public.

Herculean Strength

Continually on the strain, or overtaxed at intervals, is far less desirable than ordinary vigor perpetuated by rational diet and exercise, and abstention from excess. Professional pugilists and athelets rarely attain extreme old age. As ordinary vigor may be retained by a wise regard for sanitary living, and for the protection against disease which timely and judicious medication affords, so also it may be lost through prolonged sedentary labor, uninterrupted mental strain, and foolish eating and drinking, the chief and most immediate sequence of all four being dyspepsia. For this condition thus, or in any way induced, and for its offspring, a failure of muscular and nerve power, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the primest and most genial of remedies. Not only indigestion, but loss of flesh, appetite and sleep are remedied by it. Incipient malaria and rheumatism are banished, and kidney, bowel and liver complaint removed by it.

A Marked Reaction.

The Journal of Sioux City Iowa, says that, in consequence of the reaction and reform due to public indignation and honor after the Haddock murder, there is not now a saloon in that place.

A WANDERING DOLLAR.

An Excellent Example of How Fast Money Travels.

Thirty years ago it was common for school-boys, when hard pushed for a so-called composition, to write an imaginary autobiography of some every-day object, a coin, for example, or a knife. Some of the fiction thus invented was undoubtedly strange enough, but not much of it could have been stranger than the adventures of a gold-piece as narrated for fact by one of our exchanges. It appears that a young woman in New Jersey had a gold dollar that she especially valued for the sake of a monogram inscribed upon it.

The coin was attached to a bracelet by a chain. One evening in February, after a sleigh ride, its owner missed it, and the broken chain showed plainly how it had disappeared. Search was at once made, but without avail. Finally an advertisement met the eye of a loafer about town, who said that he had found the dollar below the steps of the sleigh the morning after the ride, and had spent it for whisky at a saloon.

The friends of the young lady determined to find the keepsake if possible. The bartender remembered receiving the coin, but had paid it to a butcher, who recollected paying it to a drover in Trenton.

The address of the drover was secured, and a letter written to him, requesting a reply at once. It soon came, and contained the information that he had purchased a ticket to Philadelphia with the money on the very day the butcher gave it to him, and that the ticket agent made some remark about the monogram.

The search was continued. The agent remembered the dollar, and said that he laid it aside for a few hours, but that it was forwarded to Philadelphia with the daily accounts. The receiver of the New Jersey receipts at Philadelphia was next corresponded with. The beautiful monogram had been noticed, but the money had been deposited in the bank.

The cashier was communicated with. His attention had been called to the initials on the back of the dollar by one of the clerks, and he had instructed him to place it aside for a few weeks. Unfortunately, in the absence of the clerk, a gentleman desiring several hundred dollars in gold, preparatory to a California trip, had been furnished with the amount, and the little piece had, in some way, been mixed with that sum and gone westward. The gentleman's name was furnished, and a letter was sent to him.

The remainder of the spring and summer passed without tidings. Finally, however, a communication was received from the gentleman stating that the letter of inquiry had just reached him, on account of some mistake in the address, but that he still had the dollar in his possession. The initials were the same as those of a young friend of his, and he had kept the coin on that account.

On receiving the proper direction he promptly returned the gold dollar so persistently searched for, the curious history of whose wanderings afford an excellent example of how fast money travels.

PRETTY TOUGH YARN.

Told by an Ancient and Truthful Mariner of the Lakes.

"Talking of life-preservers," said the truthful mariner, as he knocked the ashes out of his pipe, to a New York Dispatch man, "you remember the old steamer Roustabout that used to run from Buffalo to Chicago? I was mate on her the year before she was lost. We were about sixty miles out from Chicago when Mike Lanagan, who was doing something upon the mast, fell, struck on his head on the roof of the cabin and bounced clean out into the lake. Well, the captain he see him fall, and he stopped and backed that old Roustabout quicker'n you could say 'scat.' Mike went down like a plummet, for he was knocked insensible, and I know'd there was no use to heave a life-preserver for him, so I just hurried up the boys in getting the boat down, although I didn't expect it 'ud do much good. We had Jim King on board. Passenger from Chicago. You remember Jim King, don't you?"

"Can't say that I do," remarked a bystander.

"Well, Jim was the champion quoit-thrower in them days. He's dead now, poor fellow, but Jim was a hoss on throwing quoits. I tell you quoits were a great game them days. Every village had a quoit club and the boys on the farms used to throw hoss-shoes. It was something like base-ball in these times, although I never could see as much fun in base-ball as I could see in a good game of quoits."

"Oh, come off," cried the impatient listener. "What did Jim do, or did he do any thing? Did the man drown?"

"Now, don't be too fly. Who's tellin' this yarn?"

"Well, you don't seem to be."

"Go on! Go on!" said the crowd

"Well, you know, in quoits a 'ringer' was when you put the quoit around the stake. It counted double. Well, Jim he picks up the round life preserver—it's like a great, big quoit, you know—and as the Cap'n came running aft, Jim he sings out: 'Cap'n, I'll bet you five dollars I'll make a ringer on that man if he comes up within the length of this line.'"

"'Bet you twenty dollars you can't,' said the Cap'n.

"'Take you,' said Jim, and just at thet minit up bobs Mike's head about sixty feet a-stern. Jim threw it, and I'll be durned if that life-preserver didn't go plump over on Mike's head clear down on his shoulders, and there it stuck. We got down a boat, and when we got to Mike he hadn't come to yet, and didn't for some time after. He'd been a goner if it hadn't bin fur that ringer, although it took the skin offen his nose."

"Did the Captain pay the twenty dollars?"

"Pay it? You jist bet he did. And Jim he handed it over to Mike, and Mike he blew it all in when we got to Detroit. I wish some of it was here now, fur I'm mighty dry. Thanks. Don't mind if I do."

BANKING IN KANSAS

Buckskin Joe Was Number Three, Hence He Got No Boodle.

He entered a bank in a Kansas town just at noon, says the New York Sun, when the place was deserted by all save the cashier, who had a far-away look in his eyes as his pale face appeared at the wicket. Drawing a revolver from his hip pocket the man with the sombrero and buckskin shirt and long hair rested the barrel on the edge of the counter and said:

"I am Buckskin Joe."

"Yes!"

"Shell out!"

The cashier reached around for a two-dollar bill and laid it before him.

"Hand out the boodle or I'll blow daylight through you!" was the stern command.

"There it is," was the calm reply.

"Don't monkey with me! Hand over the funds!"

"There is every dollar we have in the bank. Come around here and see for yourself."

"But—but—"

"Easy enough explained. The president and cashier sloped in company last night and this is the bill they overlooked. I'm the teller, and I'm standing here in hopes to take in enough deposits to pay my fare to Chicago."

"And the shanty is busted!"

"As you see. Sorry for you, old boy, but you ought to have dropped in yesterday. Please do me the favor to keep still as you go out. I've been lynched twice in this State and I don't admire the sensation."

Its Excellent Qualities

Commend to public approval the California liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs. It is pleasing to the eye, and to the taste and by gently acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, it cleanses the system effectually, thereby promoting the health and comfort of all who use it.

Parents shoud be careful that their children do not contract colds during the fall and early winter months. Such colds weaken the lungs and air passages, making the child much more likely to contract other colds during the winter. It is this succession of colds that causes catarrh and bronchitis or paves the way for consumption. Should a cold be contracted lose no time but cure it as quickly as possible. A fifty cent bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will cure any cold in a few days and leave the respiratory organs strong and healthy. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

A Safe Investment.

Is one which is guaranteed to bring you satisfactory results, or in case of failure a return of purchase price. On this sale plan you can buy from our advertised druggists a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It is guaranteed to bring relief in every case, when used for any affection of Throat, Lungs or Chest, such as Consumption, Inflamation of Lungs, Bronchitis, Asthma, Whooping cough, croup, and etc., etc. It is pleasant and agreeable to taste, perfactly safe, and can always be depended upon.

Trial bottles free at S. J. Hodgkinson's Druggists.

Merit Wins

We desire to say to our citizans, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklin Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merit. S. J. Hodgkinson druggist.

A Hale Old Man.

A hale old man, Mr. Jas. Wilson of Allens Springs, Ill., who is over sixty years of age, says: "I have in my time tried a great many medicines, some of excellent quality; but never before did I find any that would so completely do all that is claimed for it as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. It is truly wonderful medicine." For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

FOR PURE FOOD.

The San Francisco Board of Health Notify Consumers which is the Best Baking Powder.

The Board of Health can engage in no more laudable occupation than the examination of our food supply, says the San Francisco Chronicle, and the instruction of the public as to those articles it finds to be pure and wholesome, and which, therefore, consumers should use.

There are quantities of baking powders in the market to use which is certain detriment to the health of the consumer. They are made from alum, or improperly compounded from other chemicals, so that they leave a strong alkaline residum in the food. Many of these powders, having been prohibited from sale in the East, have been collected by their manufacturers from the dealers with whom they were left on commission, and shipped to the Pacific Coast. The public knows nothing about their quality except what it reads in the newspaper advertisements. In the effort to gain a foothold in this market unscrupulous manufacturers of these cheaply made, low grade baking powders have indulged in extravagant statements both with reference to their own and other brands, claiming the most improbable endorsements for their goods and denouncing the brands best known and longest used upon the Pacific Coast.

The action of the physicians of the Board of Health, therefore, in giving the public reliable, authoritative information as to the brand of baking powder to be used to secure the most economical and wholesome food is most valuable and timely.

The chief brands of baking powders sold upon the Pacific Coast were collected and analyzed by Messrs. Thomas Price & Son, the well-known analytical chemists of San Francisco. They found the strength or leavening gas (measured at 100° F.) of the brands named as follows:

Name.	Leavening Gas Cubic inches per oz
Royal	191
Giant	140
Golden Gate	123
Dr. Price's	116
Pioneer	105

The general usefulness of baking powder depends upon the quantity of leavening gas it gives off. As these powders are retailed at about the same price, the most economical is also apparent.

The opinion of the Board of Health is as follows:

We, the members of the Board of Health of the city and county of San Francisco, cordially approve and recommend the Royal Baking Powder. It is absolutely pure and healthful, composed of the best ingredients, of the highest strength and character.

In our judgment, it is impossible to make a purer or stronger baking powder than the Royal.

SASH AND DOOR TRADE.

Pacific Coast Lumber Considered the Best.

The Northwestern Lumberman says: It is probable that the sash and door trade will be immensely developed on the North Pacific Coast during the coming five years. The cedar of that region is admirably adapted to the manufacture of such goods. It is wide, clear and easily worked, but its chief recommendation for sash and doors is its integrity when put in place. It never warps, and shrinks and swells but little. It is now largely used for the home demand, and manufacturers already have their minds set on extending their markets so as to reach remoter parts of the country. There is no reason why their anticipations should not be realized. Sash and doors are mill products that can be shipped long distances at a profit, and an energetic pushing would place North Pacific factory output in any part of the country.

NEW WATER COMPANY.

Another Supply of Pure Mountain Water for Reno.

Alvaro Evans informs a GAZETTE reporter that he and his associates are going to supply Reno with a new system of water works, with a 300-foot pressure and will reach the town limits with a 22-inch main. By the first day of next July the above company intend to be ready to supply the entire town with a pure article of drinking water at one-half the present rate. Their books are now open for the registration of the names of people favorable to the above enterprise, but no money is asked for, as the entire amount necessary has already been put up.

San Francisco Meat Market.

There is a good supply of meats of all kinds, and the prospects are favorable for continued liberal receipts.

Following are the rates for whole carcasses from slaughterers to dealers:

BEEF—First quality, 6@6½c; second quality, 5@5½c; third quality, 4@4½c ₱ lb.

VEAL—Quotable at 5@6½c for large and 7@9c ₱ lb. for small.

MUTTON—Quotable at 6@6½c ₱ lb.

LAMB—Quotable at 8@9c ₱ lb.

PORK—Live hogs, on foot, grain fed, medium, 5@5½c; heavy, 4@4¼c; soft, 4½@5c; dressed hogs, 7½@8½c ₱ lb.

A Ten Story Building.

It is reported that Mrs. Charles Crocker, Colonel Fred Crocker and William H. Crocker have purchased the Gore lot at the junction of Market, Montgomery and Post streets, San Francisco, and will erect thereon a ten story building of handsome design. Work will begin next Spring. The Crocker-Woolworth bank is to have quarters in the proposed building.

A New Trial.

W. T. C. Elliott, who killed J. B. White at Independence, Inyo county, Cal., has been taken to Bakersfield, Kern county, for the new trial granted by the Supreme Court. There are said to have been fears that the prisoner would be lynched, but the change was made without incident.

BREVITIES.

Local and General Intelligence.

Go to E. C. Northrop's for a bargain in carpets.

Some of the Journal's "specials" are a little ancient.

The work on the foundation of the C. P. depot is progressing rapidly.

Now is the time to get a new dress while E. C. Northrop is offering such bargains in remnants.

Three of a bold gang of horse thieves have been captured on the McKenzie river and taken to Portland, Or.

A. Banta has sold his Truckee Meadows ranch to the Twaddle brothers of Franktown. Consideration, $15,000.

A company of cavalry with four carloads of horses from Vancouver, on the way to Fort Leavenworth, passed here yesterday.

The two-year-old child of Joseph Mantz of Sebastapol, Cal., wandered away Sunday and is supposed to have perished in the storm.

The masons are busily engaged in putting in the stone foundation for the new Baptist Church on Second street, Powning's addition.

J. A. Zeigler to-day received the sad news of the death of his father at Placerville, California, and he will leave for there to-night.

The Central Pacific time-table a recently published in the GAZETTE will soon go into effect, but just when, has not yet been determined.

The employes of the Los Angeles & Pacific railroad are expected to go on a strike because they have not been paid their salaries for six months.

An Indian boy was wading in the Feather river, near the Golden Gate mine, Thursday, says the Oroville Mercury, when a large fish carried off the great toe of his left foot.

MONO COUNTY, CAL., ITEMS.

Rolling Boulders—Fine Grapes—Poor Feed and Bad Trails.

The Homer Index says:

Scores of immense boulders, some of them weighing hundreds of tons, are rolling down over Parrett's trail to the Bonanza mine every night, smashing that serpentine thoroughfare so that it will have to be reconstructed.

Fine grapes were raised at Andy Thompson's ranch, at Mono Lake, this season, from vines only two years old. No frost has yet struck the lake shore, and all foliage is as green as it was in midsummer. Altitude, 6,000 feet.

Feed for animals is becoming very scarce in these canyons. In other years it has been good at this season, but last summer an unusual number of horses and cattle from the valley gnawed grass to the roots before it matured or even got a good start.

"Shorty," the Mexican packer, concluded that these trails were a little too tough for his city-bred mules, and has departed for the shores of Mono Lake, to lug wood for James Glenbrook Thompson, Esq., on level ground. The Golden Prince trail, one of the best in the district, scared him into fits. There is one place on it where if a mule falls he will keep going all day and get hungry before he fetches up.

PERSONAL.

C. C. Wallace returned from San Francisco on this morning's express.

Wells Drury has declined the Journal's offer and returned to San Francisco.

Hamlin and Doane, of the Essex Mill Company, were both in town yesterday.

Carson Huntsman of Battle Mountain passed east on this morning's overland.

R. J. Laws of the C. & C. railroad and Senator Williams of Ormsby county returned from below this morning.

Hon. Thomas Wren and Judge Rives returned last evening from Carson, where they had been on professional business.

Mrs. C. S. McClain, daughter of Mrs. Calwell and sister of Charles, Mary and A. J. Taylor, accompanied by her two children, arrived last Sunday night from Kansas, where Mr. McClain is following his vocation of railroad engineer.

The Sutro Tunnel.

Last evening's Virginia Chronicle says: To-day the Sutro Tunnel property was formally transferred to the Union Trust Company and the Comstock Tunnel Company of New York, and the receiver, S. C. Johns, appointed pending the McCalmont mortgage foreclosure suit, was discharged. Col. C. C. Thomas, the present Superintendent, was re-elected by the new company. Notwithstanding the threatened suit of the shareholders of the old stock the extension of the line of the main tunnel westward under the peak of Mount Davidson, a mile beyond its present terminus, will soon be inaugurated.

AN ASTONISHING CHANGE.

"My dear madam, I never saw you looking so well, and you were so poorly, too."

"Yes, doctor, Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is the grandest thing in the world for run-down, nervous and debilitated women. That's the secret of my appearance."

Up to a month ago Mrs. Belden, an elderly lady, living at 510 Mason street, San Francisco, was failing in health and flesh so rapidly as to seriously alarm her relatives. She now writes: "I have taken but one bottle of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, but it is astonishing. I am regaining my lost flesh and have not felt as well in years."

A Change For the Better.

Change is one of the irresistable and fortunately the change is almost invariably for the better. As an instance of this, St. Patrick's pills are fast taking the place of the old harsh and violent cathartics, because they are milder and produce a pleasanter effect, besides they are much more beneficial in removing morbid matter from the system and preventing ague and other malarious diseases. As cathartic and liver pill they are always perfect. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

EARLY TRANSPORTATION.

The Chief Means of Conveyance in the Early Days of the West.

In the Magazine of American History is an article on "Early Transportation in the West—the First and Latest Steamer on Lake Erie," by Mr. D. W. Manchester, secretary of the Cleveland Historical Society. Primitive transportation was crude and laborious. On this point Mr. Manchester says:

Before the discovery and development of the great mining and lumber industries of the West, or the demands of commerce had rendered possible the facilities of modern transportation, the chief means of conveyance was the birch bark canoe and pony of the Indian. The carrying capacity of each was enormous and something wonderful. With canoes sometimes six feet wide and thirty-five feet long, sixty packs of furs, each pack weighing a hundred pounds; a thousand pounds of provisions, sufficient for a crew of eight or ten men, in addition to bark and gum for repairs, the early traveler and explorer tells us was not an unusual load down the Great Lakes to Quebec and as far as Albany. Of course transportation in this way was necessarily slow, because these canoes were so slight and fragile that when loaded they could not withstand rough weather, nor approach a rough beach. In the latter event, freight and canoe were "backed" around a portage, reloaded and the journey resumed. A very convenient and useful trading boat was the Mackinaw bateau. It was built of oak or pine boards, had flat bottoms, shaped the same at each end and had high sides. The pirouge was a long canoe frequently made of a large red cedar tree with high sides and ends, and was used mainly for passengers, carrying about eight persons. A canoe in common use was called a "dug-out," because it was made by chopping, digging and burning out the trunk of a tree. Some of the trees were enormous and capacious, but it required great skill and experience to successfully manage a canoe thus constructed, a slight lateral motion or unsteady position being sufficient to capsize it. Little wonder that the Indian was erect and "straight as an arrow." He spent much of his time, too, in the midst of tall, straight trees.

In his famous expedition to the upper lakes in 1820, Governor Cass employed canoes for transportation. This expedition, at the time it was made, was the most important, taken in all, that had ever been undertaken with the sanction and authority of the general Government. The objects primarily were an examination into the condition of the Indian tribes who occupied that country, and to procure the extinction of Indian titles to the land about the straits of St. Mary's, Prairie du Chien and Green Bay and to open up communication between the two latter points. The expedition also had in contemplation a thorough and scientific examination of the copper region in the vicinity of Lake Superior. Much has been heard of this section through Indians and half-breeds, who said a large mass of virgin ore, weighing several tons, had fallen from a hill; specimens had been sent to Washington, and in 1800 Mr. Tracy, a Senator from Connecticut, had been dispatched to make an examination, but he proceeded no further than Mackinaw. Governor Cass also intimated that it would be well to consider the natural history of the country through which the expedition would pass, and accordingly made a request that the Government send some person who was acquainted with zoology, botany and mineralogy. For the latter position, the expedition was fortunate in having Henry R. Schoolcraft, since of wide celebrity a greatness in many respects, especially an author, and deservedly so as the writer on ethnological researches respecting the Indians of North America. Other prominent members of the party, besides Governor Cass, were Captain D. B. Douglass, professor of engineering at West Point; Alexander Wolcot, M. D.; Lieutenant Evans Mackey, U. S. artillery; James Doty, official secretary, and Charles Trowbridge, assistant topographer. There were also ten United States soldiers as escort, ten Indians to act as hunters, two interpreters and ten Canadian voyageurs to manage the canoes. Forty-one in all in four birch-bark canoes. They reached Mackinaw in fourteen days, a distance of three hundred and sixty miles from Detroit, the starting point, which they left the 24th of May. General Cass reached this place on his return the 10th of September following, having traveled almost entirely by canoe over four thousand miles.

In early times in the West the horse also played a prominent part in the transportation of persons and freight. The French or Indian pony was indispensable to the fur-trader and Indian in getting their furs and peltries to points where they could be transported to canoes or bateaux, and the immense load of buffalo and other skins that these small animals would carry is astonishing. They were very hardy, and have been known to travel under the saddle sixty to seventy miles a day for many successive days. It is not quite clear when the larger, modern horses were first used in the West, but they are reported to have been brought from Fort Duquesne to Detroit immediately following the defeat of General Braddock, in 1755, but it is probable that they were there much earlier, as Cadillac, who founded Detroit in July, 1701, without doubt had them, and in a grant of land from him to Joseph Parent, in 1708, there was a condition that the latter was to keep Cadillac's horses shod. They were, however, not plenty, and often there was only one horse for two or three persons, in which case the "ride and tie" method was adopted in journeying—which was that one person would ride a few miles, when he would dismount, tie the horse and proceed on foot. The next one who came along would take the horse, ride on ahead of the first and tie the horse. This rested both man and beast and fairly good progress was made. Journeys on horseback were frequently made from Detroit to New York and Washington. Major Biddle, a Territorial delegate to the latter place, went on horseback, traveling upwards of nine hundred miles in that way.

SMALL BUT WICKED.

How a Little Wretch of a Boy Broke His Sister's Heart.

The compassion or the scorn with which the masculine mind regards the female of the race begins so early in life, says the Boston Courier, that it is most difficult to say whether it is the result of imitation or is one of the gifts of intuition. The small boy feels himself superior to his little sister quite without regard to whether he or she is the more clever. He is he and she is only she.

A small five-year-old lad, in whom this sense of masculine superiority was not wholly lacking, was one day arrayed in his first trousers. Standing before his sister, a couple of years younger, he drew himself up for her inspection and then proceeded to address her to this effect:

"Kittie," he said, "you can't never wear trousers."

He paused, apparently to let his words take their full effect.

"Kittie," he continued, "you can't never have a mustache."

He paused again and let this dreadful announcement in its turn eat into his sister's soul; then he brought out the climax with a triumphant thrill in his voice more eloquent than any words could have been.

"Kittie, you can't never be a man nohow!"

Poor, small Kittie, overwhelmed by these successive statements, of which she comprehended the import only as something unspeakably dreadful, and took that from the tone, probably, rather than from the words, looked at her brother one agonized moment, and then gave vent to her anguish in one wild howl, which brought nurse from one direction and mamma from another. At sight of the audience Kittie burst into tears and lamentations piteous to behold, and when the small boy was reproved for making his sister cry his answer was:

"Well, I just told her she'd always got to be a girl, 'cause I thought she'd be disappointed if she got to be five and couldn't have on trousers."

There seemed to be nothing in particular which could be said to this, and the elders devoted themselves to assuaging the grief of the small girl as well as they might, leaving the boy to strut about in his new trousers in the full consciousness of having done his duty to the weaker vessel.

A FAMILY DISTURBANCE.

Mr. Swimple Keeps a Secret from His Wife, But Finally Reveals It.

As George W. Swimple entered his neat but not gaudy little cottage on Fifth avenue S (on which he paid rent) one evening a few weeks ago, his face bore a look of mingled perplexity and self-conscious shame, says the Minneapolis Journal. And no wonder; for in the whole six months of their married life George had never kept a secret from his wife. But at last temptation assailed him and he had succumbed. George entered the pleasant, cozy sitting-room, and as he mopped the perspiration from his face he heard the bird-like voice of his wife, gayly trilling a few notes of the opera they had heard together the night before, as she prepared the table for the evening meal.

"Oh, she does not suspect. If she only knew!"

His wife heard his step and came rushing into the room to greet him.

"Oh, George, the day has been so long and I have been so lonely without you," she murmured as she pillowed her head upon his breast.

"And you look so tired and worried, too, George; tell me all and let your little wife share with your anxieties and your sorrows, as a good wife should."

George could stand it no longer. He sank upon his knees at her feet and clasped her cool, white hands in his throbbing palms.

"Anasthasia, my own, forgive me," he cried in choking accents; "I have kept a secret from you."

Anasthasia's willowy form trembled from the intensity of her emotion, but she did not weep nor faint.

"Oh, George!" she cried, in reproachful, mournful accents, and her lip quivered.

"Anasthasia, darling, let me confess all and ease my aching heart. I—I—bought a lottery ticket last night. There, you know all now. Deal with me as you will."

Anasthasia's answer was a caress. "George," she said, slowly and distinctly, "I forgive you. What was the number?"

"It was 27,849."

"Oh, George! I dreamed last night that you bought a ticket and that it drew $5,000. Five thousand dollars. Just think of it. Why, we will be rich!"

George heaved a sigh of relief. He thought the worst was over.

"I think we'd better buy a house."

"Oh, George, you don't mean it. We can get eight per cent. for it at interest and then I can have a new sealskin sacque."

"Anasthasia, my dear, I don't like to pay rent. Now, you see—"

"George, I think you are real mean. You know I want the sacque so bad," and Anasthasia's coral lip began to pout and the suspicion of a tear floated in the eye nearest George.

"Mrs. Swimple, I want to do what is best. Even with $5,000 we can not be extravagant. When we own a home, then—"

"I'll hear no more, George Washington Swimple. I can see plainly that you love me no longer. I little thought when I first listened to your passionate protestations of love that it would come to this. Take your ill-gotten wealth and—"

The door-bell rang loudly. George went to the door. A postman handed him a letter. He opened it with trembling hands. It was the list of the lucky numbers at the last drawing of the lottery. No. 27,849 drew—nothing.

George Washington Swimple turned to his wife. She lay in a dead faint on the floor.

NICKED BOOT HEELS.

How Sleeping Car Waiters Marked the Inspectors or Spotters.

A Treasury official, who does considerable railroad traveling, says he has made an amusing discovery which, if properly carried out, insures unusual care and attention from employees on parlor and sleeping cars. The tourist who has been initiated is provided with the most comfortable seat in the dining car, receives special care and attention from the waiters, and is always sure to have a lower berth in the sleeper. Should any of his fellow passengers become jealous at the marked courtesy shown their comrade and inspired with curiosity to know why the distinction is made, they have only to look at the heels on the shoes of the favored one and they will observe that there is a small "nick" or notch there.

Inspectors or "spotters" of the palace-car service are constantly traveling over the railroads to see that the passengers received proper attention. They do not intend to have their connection with the company known to the railroad officials, but frequently the latter "drop" to their little game and stamp them so that they will be known all along the road. The porter in gathering up the boots and shoes in his car cuts a "nick" in the hind part of the shoe belonging to the inspector, so that the other porters will recognize him as they look at his shoes.

The Treasury official in a mysterious way became aware that a nick in the heel of his shoe would greatly facilitate his comfort and pleasure in traveling. He tried the experiment and it worked to his entire satisfaction. He found that he was served with the best provisions the buffet car afforded, his shoes received the brightest shine, and although he had been obliged to purchase an upper berth the conductor on the sleeper kindly placed a "lower" at his disposal. It is probable that a new system for tagging the "spotters" will be adopted in the railway service, now that their trademark becomes known.

Very many attacks of sick headache can be prevented if those who are subject to them are careful about their diet and largely restrict the same to vegetables and fruits easy of digestion. They must forego meat, cheese, pastry, beer, wine, etc in fact, neither eat nor drink any thing which is stimulating in character and at all likely to tax the digestive organs
